題目 (Title) Various choices and experiences enrich our lives. [1枚目のみ記入]

I agree with the idea that more money makes us happier for several reasons.

Firstly, money can give us invaluable opportunities which ordinary people cannot have, such as traveling and studying abroad. With money, we can visit where we would like to go or have world-class education in supreme universities. These experiences will broaden our horizons and enrich our lives.

Secondly, we can feel happy by contributing to society through giving money to charity and investment. For example, in the current situation, there are many people in dire poverty but they are not sufficiently supported by governments.

By giving money in charity groups saving the poor, we can extricate the socially disadvantaged. This experience will in turn lead to happiness of givers. Also, it is possible for us to invest money in companies or activities which we want to support. We can feel satisfaction through this contribution.

Finally, money can reduce burdens on our minds and pave the way for happiness, especially when we are in difficulties. For instance, when you become ill, you will worry about your future, money and family very seriously.

On the other hand, with more money, you can receive paramount medical treatments and you don't have to think about financial problems. In this way, you can relieve your stress and you are more likely to lead a pleasant life.

In conclusion, for the above-mentioned reasons, I strongly believe that money can bring about happiness to us and enrich your lives.

題目 (Title) More important things than money [1枚目のみ記入]

Do you think more money really makes us happier? This question is very common. Some people think money makes us happy, and others do not think that. Of course, money is important. However, I do not think more money than need makes us happy. I believe connect with people or experience, not money, really make us happy.

It is certain that money is essential to live, and with much money, we can do many things. For example, we can buy expensive watches, big cars, or houses with pools. If you know someone have much money and often travel abroad, you may wish you had much money.

However, I believe there are more important things than money. Many people work to earn money, but do they really work only to earn money? I do not think so. By working with your colleagues, you can build good relationships with them, and they may become your close friends. By trying to solve difficult problems and achieving them, you can feel confident about your abilities. You may sometimes have to do something you do not want to do, and wish you had much money or could earn money easily. However, I believe that you can learn from bitter experience, too. Thus, these relationships with people and experience in earning money, not money itself, really make us happy.

In addition, in my opinion, those who know how hard earning money are kind to people around them. Also, those who know the value of money thank people around them, and are thanked by them. Even if these people earn much money, they can feel happy in many situation because they are loved by people around them. Therefore, I think love is more important money, too.

In conclusion, more money really makes us happier. I believe there are more important things than money, for instance, connect with people, experience, and love, so we should not aim only to earn much money, we should thank people around us, try to find small happiness and enjoy them.

題目 (Title) Being rich leads you to the fruitful ^{life} 1枚目のみ記入

If you saw a falling star in the night sky, what would you wish for? Quite a few people would probably be like "I want to be rich!". Becoming rich is one of the most common things people desire. Why do so many people want to be wealthy? There has to be something super attractive and that will change your life for the better about money. I strongly believe that more money makes people happier, while some argue that rich people tend to be lonely. I am going to explain the reasons why I think so from the two aspects; avoiding things you do not like and becoming magnetic.

First, if you have a lot of money, you can not only get whatever you want, but also avoid what you do not want to face. Let's take a look at means of transportation. If you stop taking a train and start taking a taxi instead, you can go to your destination directly as well as you can avoid standing in an unbearably crowded train for a long time. You might think that it is not that big of a difference, however, a mass of small things like this will make a huge difference in the long run in terms of reducing stress. Many studies show that people are more likely to be happier when they are able to stay away from things they hate than when they acquire what they desire. Paying more money and avoid those things is the privilege for the rich only.

Second, you can be magnetic by making more money. Being able to make a lot of money is a talent that not everyone can do. Accordingly, you will have an aura and people will respect and follow you, like a magnet. A magnet never chases to attract. It is the energy that it emits that makes other things want to be close to it. Like this, you will get abundance and happiness almost automatically once you have money at a certain level.

For the reasons mentioned above, I am sure that people become much happier when they have more money. Some people might say that more money makes you lonely, but it is actually the opposite. More money will definitely allow you to have a wider connection, and reduce the possibilities of running across stressful situations.
